VizCon 2020 Berlin

The VizCon is a working meeting for anyone wanting to contribute to the plotting and visualization ecosystem of Julia. We'll have presentations and discussions but mostly, we'll focus on coding together!

The idea is to focus on areas of the plotting/visualization ecosystem in Julia and try to give some areas a "quantum leap". Often a really concerted focused effort on a package can give it that push to become much more broadly useful.

We will meet in Berlin, which is centrally located in Europe, at the Technical University, which has kindly given us the use of a seminar room for the meeting. The meeting will be open to everyone.

We plan to start the days/sessions with a guided-tour-for-contributors on the key packages, to ease entry for interested coders that are first-time-contributors to these packages. Then we'll split into groups to work, some to agree on designs and open issues, some to code away and close issues.

In the evenings we'll go out and eat together - during the VizCon last year we had a wonderful atmosphere of companionship and achievement in the evenings.
